GENERAL INTELLIGENCE.

Another survivor of Waterloo has just died, in his 90th year, viz., Lieutenant-Colonel Francis Feneran, senior paymaster of the army. The deceased enlisted as a private soldier at the time of the Peninsular War, and served in the ranks during the campaign in Holland in 1814, and at Waterloo in the following year. He received a commission as quartermaster when the 95th (Derbyshire) Regiment was raised for service in 1823, and was subsequently paymaster to the regiment from 1837 to 1854, when he was appointed to the depot battalion at Parkhurst. Lieutenant-Colonel Feneran finally retired upon half-pay when the depot battalions were reduced in 1870, and he was given a pension four years ago for his long and faithful services.
